

Wednesday, June 5, 2002

Duxbury Clipper

Boehm Named Deputy Field Director

Duxbury resident Ryan Boehm, a senior at Suffolk University (B.S. Government), has been named the deputy field director for Plymouth, Bristol, Barnstable and Hampden counties for Jim Rappaport's campaign for lieutenant governor.

Boehm has worked on local, statewide and presidential campaigns in Massachusetts. He volunteered in his hometown of Duxbury with Ed Teague's congressional campaign in 1996, Joe Malone's campaign for Governor in 1998 and State Senator Robert Hedlund, R-Weymouth.

According to Jim Rappaport, "Ryan is hard working and brings a youthful energy to the position and the campaign."

Duxbury resident Ryan Boehm with candidate Jim Rappaport.

Prior to being promoted as a Deputy Field Director, Boehm was an office and convention volunteer for the Rappaport campaign.